How PPI can help consumers when buying property

Consumers find it tough when it comes to purchasing property, where do they start once they have found the house of their dreams? Well that's where we can help. APOPA - Australian Property Owners Protection Association is an organisation consisting of experts in all areas of the property industry. This association has been formed through PPI Registry & will be officially launched within the early months of 2010. APOPA will be a huge benefit & trouble-free process for consumers purchasing property. This association is a simple & secure system for consumers not only when purchasing a home but for maintenance on a property or legal advice with any property disputes that may occur. Another source of benefits APOPA offer is ADR - Alternative Dispute Resolution for people experiencing difficulties with poor workmanship on their home or incomplete work. These are just some of the many areas APOPA can assist consumers with. The purpose & the direction we are heading is to improve the property industry not only for the public but for the experts working within the property industry.

Training Seminars 2010

APOPA will be introducing 25 units of accreditation and competency throughout 2010 these seminars are for all building & pest inspectors wanting to learn more, keep up to date with rules & regulations & obtain CPD Points through PPI Institute. There will also be classes held for staff in relation to 2nd and 3rd parties typing up reports. These are some of the important areas that need to be addressed especially when a 2nd or 3rd party is typing up your inspection report.

Training seminars for inspectors starting out within the inspection industry will be available. PPI have had many calls for help from people needing direction on how to become a Pest or Building inspector. So keep your eyes & ears open for further information regarding the introduction & direction of APOPA.
